ABOUT OUR COVER:

How do you preserve precious coastal wetlands while creating jobs and a new income for Louisiana residents?

You let Dr. Sarah Mack, founder of Tierra Resources, figure it out. She is pioneering the first-of-its-kind carbon offset methodology that will assist with coastal wetlands restoration. Under this new methodology, carbon credits created by restoring wetlands can be registered and sold to help finance wetlands recovery. This is but one of the big ideas to come out of The Idea Village and the Greater New Orleans Foundation's Water Challenge – a nationally recognized model for encouraging entrepreneurial innovation in water management.

BIG CHALLENGES. BIG IDEAS.

Big challenges call for big ideas. Land has been purchased for a new Center for Philanthropy to be located on Lee Circle, thanks to our very generous supporters. The 20,000 square-foot facility will provide much needed space for the continued growth of our highly successful nonprofit training programs and for community meetings. The building will become a focal point for philanthropy and nonprofit work in our region. But we cannot do it without you. Your generosity is the cornerstone of all we do. Your support is the foundation for the future of the communities we serve. Together we can build that future.

ONE SQUARE FOOT AT A TIME.

For 30 years, the Greater New Orleans Foundation—your community foundation—has been rising to new challenges.

- Led the Unified New Orleans Planning (UNOP) process that garnered the release of close to half a billion dollars of recovery funds for the City of New Orleans
- Helped rehabilitate or construct mixed income, mixed use affordable housing that has provided homes to 9,500 families
- Helped tens of thousands of families recover from the effects of the Gulf Coast oil spill
- Worked tirelessly to raise money for our region's best charities
- Made tens of millions of dollars in grants to support transformative work in education, housing, workforce development, arts and culture, the environment, and other areas critical to our quality of life
- Launched a program, now entering its third year, to increase the effectiveness of our region's nonprofits

METROPOLITAN OPPORTUNITIES

IDEAS THAT LAST

BIG CHALLENGE:

Following Katrina, New Orleans suffered from a severe shortage of affordable housing. Rents increased exponentially. Insurance costs skyrocketed. While many units of mixed-income housing have been developed using public funds and tax credits since 2005, these units are not guaranteed to remain affordable for the long-term, raising concerns about where low-income families will live.

BIG IDEA:

One strategy is to renovate historic buildings to create permanently affordable housing through the model of community land trusts. A community land trust holds the deed to the property, thus ensuring affordable rental or purchase prices in perpetuity. In partnership with the Greater New Orleans Foundation and the Ford Foundation, Crescent City Community Land Trust is working to create permanently affordable housing by forming land trusts in neighborhoods experiencing a surge in property values and a shortage of affordable housing options.

The community land trust model is uniquely suited to help spur the revival of inner-city blighted neighborhoods, address preservation of historic neighborhoods, and offer community-centric solutions to blighted and vacant properties. This long-term sustainable solution is a model that can be used on a larger scale to make certain that our neighborhoods remain viable and all of our citizens benefit from our city's economic opportunities.

NEW ORLEANS WORKS

IDEAS THAT WORK

BIG CHALLENGE:

There are many entry level jobs in the growing healthcare field that are simply not being filled due to a lack of qualified applicants.

BIG IDEA:

The Greater New Orleans Foundation is developing a workforce training program that is employer-driven. Participants in the program receive training directly related to the specific jobs available. And, they are guaranteed a job upon completion.

New Orleans Works (NOW), a public-private collaborative housed at the Greater New Orleans Foundation, pairs Ochsner Health System, the area's largest healthcare employer, with Delgado Community College, the area's oldest and largest community college, in an innovative approach to workforce creation. NOW creates an environment where there are opportunities for higher wages, better benefits, and career advancement.

The program teaches essential technical skills, but also develops so-called "soft" skills such as interpersonal communication and workplace best practices. More than 500 applicants expressed interest in filling one of the 50 slots available for the pilot program. In the future, the NOW model will be applied to a wide range of workforce development situations.

NEW ORLEANS NOW

IDEAS THAT NOURISH

BIG CHALLENGE:

We have a large stock of vacant properties and a need for creative redevelopment.

BIG IDEA:

One solution is to combine the creation of a mixed-income housing development with a social enterprise that yields new jobs, delivers healthy food to our school children, and provides employment for unskilled workers. With support from the Greater New Orleans Foundation's Community Revitalization Fund, Renaissance Neighborhood Development Corporation (a subsidiary of Volunteers of America), purchased a vacant building. The riverfront property, part of the historic Lykes Steamship facility, is the site of 52 mixed-income apartments, as well as Fresh Food Factor, an 8,000 square-foot commercial kitchen that prepares fresh and healthy foods for 1,000 school children a day, and that trains 100 workers annually for jobs in our vibrant restaurant industry.

IDEAS THAT STRENGTHEN

BIG CHALLENGE:

How do you help grow the capacity of the area's most promising nonprofits? How do you support nonprofit leaders to work more effectively, collaboratively, and successfully on behalf of their clients and mission?

BIG IDEA:

The Foundation's Organizational Effectiveness (OE) initiative brings the many nonprofits we serve together in shared learning experiences that focus on real-world solutions to the challenges they face. Just as for-profit businesses invest for profitability, so too must nonprofits invest in themselves, both to ensure their long-term survival and to increase their capacity for service.

"Investing in ourselves today means we can give even more to the community tomorrow," says Rachel Heiligman, executive director of RIDE, an energetic nonprofit working to improve our community's public transportation options. "OE was a huge help for me because not only did I learn about financial management and board governance, but it provided a peer-to-peer learning experience that extended beyond the classroom." To date, the Foundation has conducted more than 200 training sessions for more than 100 nonprofits.

Our new Center for Philanthropy will enable us to extend this important service to more nonprofits. The result is a stronger, more effective nonprofit community.

DR. JARRETT ANN JOHNSON

When long-time educator and community activist Aida Smith Johnson passed away in early 2003, her four children moved quickly to memorialize Mrs. Johnson's life work. She had spent three decades as supervisor of Total Community Action, St. Bernard's Head Start Center.

Her family wanted to continue helping young children in the area in ways that would last far beyond a single memorial gift. Mrs. Johnson's daughter, Dr. Jarret Ann Johnson, told us, "We wanted to do something that would support agencies like Head Start that do so much to help children." The Greater New Orleans Foundation helped them establish the Aida Smith Johnson Fund for Children.

The Foundation's expertise and awareness of the needs of children in the community guided the Johnson family and simplified their philanthropic efforts.

AIDA SMITH JOHNSON FUND FOR CHILDREN

As part of its ongoing effort to increase digital literacy in the region, NOLA Media Group, which encompasses the Times Picayune and NOLA.com, decided to provide $500,000 to support nonprofit organizations in the New Orleans area and across southeast Louisiana that help communities gain access to digital technology. The NOLA Access Initiative, a partnership between the NOLA Media Group and the Greater New Orleans Foundation, was formed.

RICKY MATHEWS

"A digitally connected community is an empowered community," commented Ricky Mathews, President of NOLA Media Group. "There are dozens of successful programs throughout southeast Louisiana that are working to increase community engagement online. We want to make an immediate impact and help them expand their efforts."

Beneficiaries will include groups such as the New Orleans Public Library Foundation, the St. Bernard Community Center, and Boys and Girls Clubs of Southeast Louisiana.

NOLA ACCESS INITIATIVE

MRS. MARGARET WALL THE MRS. MARGARET FUND FOR COMMUNITIES IN SCHOOLS

Mrs. Margaret Wall, a longtime champion of childhood education, was one of the founders of the Communities in Schools local chapter. CIS looks at all aspects of a student's life before deciding how best to help. "What's happening to a child outside of the classroom, impacts their ability to be successful inside the classroom," comments Mrs. Wall. "Our CIS site coordinators are our secret weapon. Each of our schools has one." The site coordinator makes a hands-on assessment of each child's needs. So far some 2,500 students have been helped and 80 percent of tracked students are making the grade. The fund qualified for a Richard West Freeman Endowment Challenge matching grant which will help Communities in Schools achieve long-term financial goals and stability.

When Amy Farnsworth's father, Billy McCauley, passed away on August 26, 2012, from ALS, the family established the William H. McCauley II Neurological Institute Fund in Greenville, SC to benefit neurological research and treatment. "To channel our philanthropy, we decided to set up a fund at the Greater New Orleans Foundation as we made our family contribution to Dad's memorial fund and to support our other various charities along with our high school and university alma maters," said Amy Farnsworth. "We decided it was time to give something back to the city that we now call home," commented her husband Stephen.

AMY AND STEPHEN FARNSWORTH FARNSWORTH FAMILY FUND

The Greater New Orleans Foundation was able to advise the Farnsworth family on the creation of a fund that would accomplish their goals.

IDEAS THAT EXPAND OUR VISION

To build a greater New Orleans, you need a strong foundation.

Not only does the Greater New Orleans Foundation encourage local philanthropy, we also bring the community together for collective problem solving. We've hired experts to work with regional planners, helping them connect low-income communities with job opportunities; brought together a panel of coastal experts to answer questions from residents and advocates; and held multi-sector convenings to discuss the latest data measuring the health of our region. On any day of the week you might find our offices and conference rooms brimming with activity.

The Greater New Orleans Foundation long ago outgrew its office and programmatic space. The staff of 24 now occupies the same office space as the pre-Katrina staff of seven.

Our new three-story, 20,000 square-foot Center for Philanthropy will enable us to expand our important work on environmental issues, affordable housing, workforce development, economic opportunity, health and human services, childhood development, arts and culture, and education.

The additional space will also enable us to expand our highly successful Organizational Effectiveness initiative. OE provides our vital nonprofits with peer-to-peer training and mentoring experiences that enable them to grow their capacity and strengthen their financial sustainability. The Center will provide flexible space for our community of donors, nonprofits, and neighborhood leaders to meet and exchange ideas.

A NEW CENTER FOR PHILANTHROPY

The new building will be a focal point for local and national donors to come together to learn about our community and the impactful work being done by our nonprofits.

A hub for philanthropic activity, the Center for Philanthropy will raise awareness of the Foundation and the important work it does. It is an idea that will reap enormous benefits both for the Foundation's future success and for its efforts to help achieve prosperity for all of our communities.

“The new Center for Philanthropy is a doorway— to the future of our city and region, to more affordable housing, to better schools and better jobs, and to a vibrant arts community. It is a doorway to quality healthcare for all of our citizens and to a sustainable environmental policy. It is a doorway that must remain open. Join us as we open the doors of the Center of Philanthropy at Lee Circle and enter a new era in the history of our great region.”

“With the generous support of all our partners and benefactors, our new permanent home will create a powerful hub for community problem-solving. It will increase our capacity to help develop and strengthen our nonprofit partners. It will enable us to expand our role as a leader and convener of ideas. The ultimate result will be a greater quality of life for all.”

The Greater New Orleans Foundation has embarked on its first major comprehensive fundraising campaign since its inception in 1983. We established an overall campaign goal of $14 million. There are three broad components to the campaign: $6 million for a permanent operating endowment, $6 million for a new building and nonprofit training center, and $2 million for expansion of the Greater New Orleans Foundation’s programmatic work. Thanks to our generous donors, we’re proud to announce we’re at 88 percent of our goal.

“A strong community and region needs at its heart a vibrant source of bold new ideas. It needs a leader who can articulate our needs on the national and global stage. The Greater New Orleans Foundation has proven itself to be that leader.”

Charles Rice Jr.
President and CEO, Entergy New Orleans, Inc.

“It is important that a community foundation have a clear vision of the needs of the region it serves. It is equally important that they have the tools to accomplish and sustain that vision. The Greater New Orleans Foundation has both.”

SUPPORTING ORGANIZATIONS

Supporting Organizations play an important role in addressing the needs of the region. Operating as separate nonprofit organizations with applicable tax exempt status, supporting organizations have a separate board of directors, can manage their own investments, and award their own grants. We are proud to partner with the following organizations:

The Maison Hospitalieres
Foundation (2008)

The John and
Clara Brady Foundation (2000)

The Pat and
Kate Brady Foundation (2000)

The Fertel Family Foundation (2000)

The J. Bennett Johnson
